

So in addition to the decision that Dragonboaters made at the last Stadium Clean Up to ban beer (whose caps hide amongst the seats) and chips (which smooch into the ground), I think it has been unanimously decided that the following should also be banned at rugby games:

- Fake tattoos and magazines which get wet and stick to the ground
- Chocolate which melts and is impossible to remove

However, amongst all the rubbish we still had a great time joking around together as we worked. That's what fundraisers are about... second to the money of course!

Telecom Back Seat Campaign (June 06)

This novel fundraising activity was a great way for our team to raise funds and to be involved with the excitement of an All Black test match. We had a huge turn out on the Friday night for this fundraiser – with dragon boaters enlisting the support of partners & children to help us with this task. The added benefit was that we all got to see the full dress rehearsal of the pre match entertainment. Even though it was a very long, cold night everyone enthusiastically got stuck into the task of slapping the promotional plastic bags (approx. 10,000) onto the backs of the seats inside the stadium. This was generally done in pairs with someone following close behind putting inserts into each of the bags. The second part of this fundraiser was the clean-up / removal of the bags from the backs of the seat which we did on the Sunday morning. A quick & easy job to finish off this fundraiser which securing us approx. $1,500 towards our fundraising pot.

LTCCP Party Celebration (June 06)

The LTCCP team would like to thank the dragon boaters for all the work they did for the LTCCP staff party. I had never been to an EW all staff event before, let alone organised one so was extremely grateful to have the experience and advice of legendary party goer Allan Halse on hand. Allan and his team not only helped with setting up but were also great serving booze to Councillors and EW staff, and were fantastic in putting the tea room back to exactly the way Shirley likes it. Thanks for all your effort - it was a great night!!

Social Club Pool Competition (July 06)

Dragon boaters chipped in by setting up and supervising the bar at the EW pool competition finals night. A big night was had by some and then as per usual...the Dragonboaters wrapped things up and cleaned up afterwards.
